Morrisey won the Consolation handicap, beating James A. Connelly, the Vandal colt second, Rivoli third, Dazzle fourth. Time—3:41. The selling purse was won by Red Wing, beating Ripley, second, and Annie Markham. Time—2:17½.

At Albany, New York, June 15, William J. Hadley, counsel for the murderer Cole, was cited to appear in court, and compelled to surrender a letter written by Cole, before he left Syracuse, showing that he contemplated a deliberate assassination of Judge Hiscock. The letter was by Cole given in Mrs. Mary E. Cuyler, of Syracuse (cousin of Mrs. Cole), and was intended for publication in the Syracuse papers after news of the killing should have been received. Mr. Hadley stated that, at the request of his client, Mr. John L. Cuyler, the husband of Mrs. Mary E. Cuyler, had, on the 7th inst., obtained the paper from her, and that by directions of the prisoner it had been by Cuyler delivered to Mr. Hadley. That he regarded it as a "privileged communication" in the judgment of the law, that he could not produce it without a violation of professional duty, and would not without the direction of the court to that effect, which direction he would obey.

THE GREAT FIRE!

The Tennessee Penitentiary in Flames.

Destruction of the Entire West Wing, with the Agricultural and Cedar Ware Works.

Loss not Less than $80,000.

The Military Called Out to Keep Back the Convicts.

Noble Conduct of a Portion of the Prisoners.

From the Union and Dispatch of Sunday.]

At eight o'clock last night, the black clouds that frowned from the western horizon were quickly lighted up, and seemed flashing back in strange splendor the bright coloring gathered from the great lurid flames that were rolling upward from what appeared to be a large building in the western portion of the city.

Little attention was at first paid to the alarm save by the fire department, but in a few minutes word sped from lip to lip that the Penitentiary was on fire. Within the prison and the court all was hurry and excitement. The entire west wing, comprising the extensive agricultural and cedar ware works of Messrs. Hyatt, Briggs & Moore, in which one hundred and fifty convicts have been daily employed, was wrapped in a red, roaring mass of billows of flame, which rolled upward and outward as if to sweep everything in their way, either above or below. The bell in the cupola is ringing out a loud alarm, which was almost drowned by the din of the voices, the crash of falling timbers, and the mingled roar of the engines and the conflagration.

The greatest fears prevailed that the convicts would make a strike for their freedom, and the whole Forty-fifth Infantry, stationed at Cumberland barracks, under Lieutenant Colonel Woodward, was called out to keep them back. Company C, Captain Burke, was the first to reach the place, but in a very short time every company was on the ground, and posted so as to close all avenues of escape from the burning prison. The convicts were all hustled into the west wing of the building, which would be the last to burn in case the fire spread, and the twenty-five guards, all heavily armed, redoubled their vigilance as the danger increased. Muskets were glittering from the little guard houses on the outer walls, and the appearance of the infantry outside had effect to dampen the hopes of any of the prisoners who had contemplated escape, and none of them seemed to care to risk death in a break for liberty. Not one of them escaped.

About a hundred of the convicts, whom it was thought could be trusted were turned out to assist in staying the flames, and they worked nobly. When the north wing was a second time threatened, and the fire was bursting through the roof of the blacksmith shop, a long line of them was formed, extending from the roofs of the sheds adjoining the north and west wings, through the foundry to the outer north wall, and bucket after bucket of water was passed rapidly up from a cistern, while streams from the Stockell and Hamilton, which were drawing from Lick Branch, were pouring over from without. A guard of seventy soldiers, with glittering bayonets, stood at the entrance, watching the movements within, and now and then casting an eye toward the west wing, from which the anxious faces of closely guarded convicts were peering at every available point.

Two thousand feet of hose, at times sustaining a pressure of two hundred and twenty-five pounds, poured out from the Stockell, while the Hamilton sent a stream through fifteen hundred feet. Two hose carriages from Cumberland barracks were brought out by Lieutenant Bower, and were used with those of the fire department.

At a quarter past ten the flames were completely under control of the fire department, and only the eastern wing continued burning. At half-past eleven all the engines were drawn off but one, which will be brought back to-day.

One of the convicts, named Brien, particularly distinguished himself in his efforts to assist in stopping the conflagration, though there were many others who did nobly, and their names will doubtless be sent to the Governor. The soldiers worked well, and deserve all praise for their good conduct. We heard Lieutenant Cleghorn mentioned as one of the officers who took a most active part.

The loss of Messrs. Hyatt, Briggs & Moore, the lessees of the workshops, is very heavy—probably not less than $70,000, nothing being saved from the burning wing. The machinery destroyed was valued at $30,000, and large quantities of very valuable lumber, designed for the construction of Maney reapers, was lost. Four hundred dozen buckets, and timber for fifteen thousand plows, were also consumed, with other stock. The amount of insurance on the whole property owned by this firm at the penitentiary, is only $25,000, in the Commercial and Tennessee Fire and Marine Insurance Companies.

The portion of the prison destroyed entails a loss of $10,000 upon the State, which is relieved by no insurance. The total loss cannot be far from $80,000.

The fire originated in the vicinity of the engine house, and was first seen issuing from the second story, by one of the guards. What occasioned it is not known.

Twelve years ago the workshops of the penitentiary were destroyed by fire, and yet the facilities for procuring water on the grounds were found very limited last night, and had there been much wind, the whole structure must inevitably have been swept away.

BRUTALITY OF BEAUMONT.

Gross Outrages of a Respectable Citizen.

A gentleman who has held positions of prominence in several civic societies, and is known to many of our citizens as a person of strict honor and of the most unimpeachable character, chanced a short time ago to advance money to a fellow member of a civic society and was induced to take a watch for the repayment of the sum loaned. Subsequently he ascertained that a third party claimed a watch answering to the description, and as the easiest mode of settling the matter called on the claimant and told him that if he would refund the trifling amount loaned, the watch, which was a valuable one, would be handed over to him without replevin, suit or other trouble.

The claimant did not refund the money, and the gentleman, wishing to leave Memphis on a tour northward, handed the watch to a friend, who was to give it to the claimant whenever he paid the money that had been given on it. Word to this effect was sent to the claimant. Yesterday the gentleman was on Main street, when he was arrested by one of Beaumont's detectives, who took him to the headquarters, where he was threatened with being locked up if he did not get the watch back and hand it over to the claimant. He declined to do so, and Beaumont, giving way to his natural brutality towards those whom he supposes to be in his power or to be afraid of him, said: "You are a d—d scoundrel: you are d—d blackguard: you are a d—d thief." The gentleman thus addressed, who is a small man, said: "Mr. Beaumont I am an Englishman, and Englishmen do not shoot in such cases generally, but if you were to say that to me on the street I think I would knock you down." "You are a d—d scoundrel, blackguard, and thief," said Beaumont, "and I'm always ready to protect myself," and he threw off his coat as if to engage in a fist fight with the gentleman, who would have served the cowardly cur right if he had shot him dead. Backed by his police, and with four times the physical power of his antagonist, Beaumont wanted to fight when assured that there would be no weapons, equalizing forces, used. Some persons present took Beaumont out and showed him that he had mistaken his man. He came back and made an abject apology to which the gentleman made no reply. Whether Beaumont will be prosecuted for the illegal arrest or held to personal account remains to be seen.

Drowning of Mr. J. B. Rathburn.

ARKENSTONE'S LANDING, ARK., June 22, 1867.

EDITORS AVALANCHE: About three weeks since a young man by the name of J. M. Rathburn, who had been attending to business as agent on my cotton plantation, left here to go to Mr. H. E. Burgett's, ten miles below here on the river. The horse he rode came back home the night after he left, without either saddle or bridle. I supposed he had turned him loose and taken a boat, as he had to cross Gravis' bayou, which at the time was very deep and swift, and had gone from Burgett's across the river, where he hired last year. But yesterday human remains were found by a little girl in a drift in Gravis' bayou. There was but little left of him except his clothes and bones. An inquest was held on him and a verdict of accidental drowning found. I recognized him by his pistol and watch, also one hundred and sixty-five dollars in greenbacks loose in his pantaloons pocket.

I had his remains decently buried and marked, so that his friends could remove them if they wish to do so. The object of this is to let his friends know of his death. I think his parents live in Indiana or Illinois. He was a northern man, but he hated a Radical as he did the devil.

Very truly your friend,
B. L. ARMSTRONG

Merchants' National Bank.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Merchants' National Bank, held on the 15th instant, it was unanimously resolved: That this bank make application to the Secretary of the Treasury to be permitted to surrender its appointment as a depositary and fiscal agent of the United States, and that the cashier pay to the treasurer the balances due the department from this bank as such depositary, and withdraw the Government bonds amounting to $100,000, belonging to the bank, now being held as security for such deposits.

From the above resolution it will be seen that the Merchants' National Bank, of Memphis, has given up the agency for the Government, and is no longer a depositary of the United States. This action has been induced by the very stringent, and we think uncalled for course of the Department in ordering all funds collected at this point to be sent direct to Cincinnati, without passing through the depositaries here, and we think is a good move on the part of the bank, as they are thereby relieved from a very annoying agency, to which little or no profit is likely to attach in the future. And to any one who is familiar with the working of these matters it will be seen at a glance that this bank is strengthened by reason of be withdrawal.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Young Lady Returning to her Country home, after a sojourn of a few months in the city, was hardly recognized by her friends. In place of a coarse, rustic, flushed face, she had a soft ruby complexion of almost marble smoothness, and instead of twenty-three, she really appeared but eighteen. Upon inquiry as to the cause of so great a change, she plainly told them that she used the Circassian Balm, and considered it an invaluable acquisition to any lady's toilet. By its use any lady or gentleman can improve their personal appearance an hundred fold. It is simple in its combination, as nature herself is simple, yet unsurpassed in its efficacy in drawing impurities from, also healing, cleansing and beautifying the skin and complexion. By its direct action on the cuticle it draws from it all its impurities, kindly healing the same, and leaving the surface as nature intended it should be, soft, smooth and beautiful. Price $1, sent by mail or express on receipt of an order by

"When the nation boils the scum will rise."

CALIGULA, the monster, was succeeded by NERO, a still greater, and it seems that BEAST BUTLER is to be succeeded in New Orleans by a little squirt who is anxious to win the same kind of infamy which disgraces the name of his predecessor. We allude to a bloated, drunken, painted nuisance called PHIL. SHERIDAN. This little popinjay is determined to make himself famous. His insolence and his egotism are disgusting. His orders are all given under the habitual inspiration of refuse whisky and are the lees of the previous night's debauch. SHERIDAN is in command of a District, but judging from his bottish deportment, one would naturally suppose that he was in command of an army of topers, and that he was made commander-in-chief on account of his capacity for guzzling down the greatest quantity of grog. PHILIP SHERIDAN must have been named after King PHILIP, and is anxious to imitate the habits of his illustrious namesake, whose intemperance, excess in eating and general carousing have been celebrated in song and story. If this be the object of the New Orleans monster, he has cause for congratulation on his success, with this difference, that PHILIP of Macedonia got drunk only at night, while PHILIP of New Orleans is drunk in the morning before breakfast, drunk at noon, and by bed time he tumbles up as limber as a suple-jack. It is said that a tick cannot bite him without having delirium tremens, and the mosquitos that are so fortunate as to get a suck at his jolly red nose, afterward hold regular Bacchanalian orgies. Knowing the contempt in which he is held by the people whom he seeks to oppress, he rides through the streets in great splendor, looking morose, defiant and a good deal like STERNE'S "SMELLFUNGUS." Nature kindly furnishes the caterpillar with the necessary appurtenances for moving about on the wall or tree where its lot has been cast, and nature has also enabled SHERIDAN to crawl on his belly like any other slimy serpent, but the ambitious reptile has got it into his little noddle that he can soar with the eagle's flight, and he mounts the whirlwind and gets up in the clouds, but the sun melts the wax which cements his wings, and like ICARUS, he tumbles down, not, however, into the sea, but into the filthy sewer in which he delights to wallow. We have closely watched SHERIDAN's course from the moment his star began to brighten, and the result of those observations are, that he is the most arrant swashbuckler, Falstaffian braggadocio, and military sham of the age. His conduct in New Orleans has been disgraceful in the extreme. It reminds us of an anecdote of the muster ground bully who went to the Court House on the annual training day of the militia, and became excited on martial music, patriotic sentiment and bad whisky. When his dander had been screwed to the sticking place, and his soul had got eager for the fray, he stripped off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, took off his hat, run his brawny fingers through his bristling hair, gave a Georgia yell, leaped from a doggery into the street, and swore he could whip any man, woman or child, white or black, on the hill. The bystanders, being sober and sensible men, did not notice him. This made him furious. He took a chip and put it on his head, and at first dared any man, woman or child, black or white, to knock it off. No one noticed this. He then offered ten dollars to any man, woman or child, black or white, that would knock it off. But nobody was disposed to touch his wood. He now lowered his key a little, and requested some one, as a favor, to knock off his chip. The favor was not done him. He then begged and entreated to be struck by somebody, and went all over the muster ground, and around and about, crying, "Won't somebody strike me?" "Please strike me!" "Won't somebody tread on my coatail?" "I must have a fight!" "I can't go home without one." Finally, merely to accommodate him, a wiry, slingeat looking fellow gave him what he wanted—a fight, and a sound drubbing to boot. We don't propose that any one shall flog this military bully at New Orleans, but we do say that the author of such conduct as SHERIDAN has been guilty of, has earned for himself a high niche in the Pantheon of Infamy. Truly brave men are terrible as a lion in battle, but as gentle and merciful as a woman in peace. Judging from SHERIDAN's conduct toward the unarmed and defenseless people of New Orleans one would conclude that he was a natural born tyrant and coward, for he displays on every occasion the froth of a mad dog and the venom of a rattlesnake. His soul seems to be rotten with Radical hate and vengeance toward the South. He is a happy illustration of the fantastic capers which a little fellow can cut when dressed in a little brief authority. As evidence of the unblushing impudence of this creature we refer to his dispatch to General GRANT, which appears in full in another column.

Ye gods! and little fishes! Sir Oracle has at last opened his mouth. The raging lion has shaken the dew from his mane and roared! SHERIDAN has paused over a mint julep long enough to lecture the President, and the Attorney General. He does'nt like to "keep up expensive boards to suit new issues at the eleventh hour." The Attorney General has opened the "road to perjury and fraud to travel on!" But this MAHOMET very graciously condescends to a promise that he will go to the mountain if the mountain wont come to him! How obliging! What a great condescension it is for this drunken satrap to promise to "obey" President JOHNSON, General GRANT and Attorney General STANBERRY, provided they stand firm in their orders. If the President has any respect for himself and the people who are bedevilled by this little tyrant he will relieve him and send him home among a people with whom he is laboring to make popularity. SHERIDAN is nothing but a blatant, bigoted partisan. He cares nothing for the interest of the people over whom he tyranizes and is prostituting his position for vile party purposes and self-aggrandisement. There must be something in the atmosphere of Louisiana that converts Northern men into demons. How favorable does the conduct of General ORD, of Mississippi, and General SCHOFIELD, of Virginia, contrast with that contemptible despot at New Orleans. The two former are gentlemen of justice and magnanimity. The latter is the dirtiest and most offensive scum which has been thrown up by war's boiling cauldron.

IN a county convention which assembled in the Criminal Court room at Nashville, last Saturday, the name of the Hon. THOMAS N. FRAZIER was suggested in connection with the candidacy for Congress in that district, and strangely enough it was not carried by acclamation. The Radical nominee is JOHN TRIMBLE, the infamous, who led the prosecution against Judge FRAZIER, and it was thought by many that there was not only poetic but actual justice in running the one against the other. Certainly Judge FRAZIER deserved a vindication from the first popular assemblage that met in Davidson county after his "conviction," and it is unfortunate that any mere prudential considerations interfered with a fair and square indorsement of his claims.

A. Cox, Humboldt, Tennessee, cotton seed planter; Louis Brauer, Memphis, Tennessee, hydraulic weighing apparatus; Wm. J. Andrews, Columbus, Tennessee, bee hive; James B. Eustis, New Orleans, Louisiana, change box.

A row took place among the Radicals at Lebanon on Saturday. Fowler, Trimble, Stokes and others were the speakers. A white Radical named Ivans, and a colored Radical, supporters of Mason's independent "God and morality" candidates for Congress, interrupted old Trimble, who foamed and raved like a wild bull. Stokes succeeded to the stand, and opened his speech by one of his tremendous defenses of his friend Trimble, saying that he had given more money to his regiment than any other man in Tennessee. Ivans at this said Stokes was a liar. One of Stokes's hen soldiers jumped towards Ivans, when the latter drew a pistol and fired at Stokes, who was pretending to be held. He was not hit. Ivans was ejected from the hall, when Stokes resumed and concluded. We do not vouch for the truth of what we publish of this affair, as we get the points from the Nashville Preds and Times, the central Radical organ.

[TELEGRAM.]

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
NEW ORLEANS, La., June 22, 1867.

General U. S. Grant, commanding armies of the United States, Washington, D. C.

General—I am in receipt of a telegram, from the President, through brevet Major General E. D. Townsend, Assistant Adjutant General United States army, directing me to extend the registration in this city and State until August 1, unless I show some good reasons to the contrary, and ordering me to report such reasons for his information. Also stating that, in his judgment, this extension is necessary to a full and fair registration, and that the time should be thus extended, because the other district commanders will not get through before that time.

My reasons for closing the registration in this city were because I had given the city two and a half months, and there were no more to register. I have given the State two and a half months, and registration will be exhausted by that time.

I did not feel warranted in keeping up boards of registration at large expense to suit new issues coming in at the eleventh hour.

The registration will be completed in Louisiana at the time specified, unless I am ordered to carry out the law under Mr. Stanbery's interpretation, which, practically, in registration, is opening a broad, undesmirred road for perjury and fraud to travel on.

I do not see why my registration should be dependent upon the time when other district commanders get through. I have given more time for the registration in Louisiana than they propose to give to their commands, for I commenced six weeks before they did.

I regret that I should have to differ with the President; but it must be recollected that I have been ordered to execute a law to which the President has been in bitter antagonism.

If, after this report, the time is to be extended, I will modify and it will be done. I would do it at once, but the President's telegram was conditional, and there is sufficient time to issue the necessary order.

P. H. SHERIDAN,
Major General Commanding.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.

A dispatch from Galveston says an Austrian passed through that city to-day en route North, representing himself as an officer of Maximilian. He stated that the Emperor had been pardoned on the condition that he leave the country as soon as the ports of Tampico and Vera Cruz are open for his departure.

The Times of this morning in an article commenting on Sheridan's telegram to Gen. Grant says it contains gross inaccuracies of facts, errors of law and logic, and says if the conduct and language of this remarkable document is sanctioned by any considerable portion of the American people, the Constitution had better be consigned at once to the flames and the Republic delivered over to anarchy and chaos.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 25.

In the Surrat trial, John M. Garrett testified that Booth and Harrold were at his father's house two days before the former was killed, and he recognised the arms he saw on their persons.

Colonel Congar testified to the capture and death of Booth, and described the articles taken from him, and stated that the diary is now in the same condition as when taken from Booth's pocket. The diary was submitted to the jurors, who examined it.

The clerk then, at the request of the defense, was ordered to take charge of all such articles put in as evidence. The witness then resumed and identified other articles taken from Booth, which was also put in as evidence. It was stated there were marks by which he identified each article. After recess Lieutenant Luther B. Baker was put on the stand and made a full statement of his part in the capture of booth. He was not examined at the conspiracy trial. Samuel K. Chester, an actor of New York, was called in to prove Booth's presence in New York, April 7th, 1865. The court adjourned at 2:45 p.m. Among the visitors at the trial to-day were Hon. N. B. Judd and Robert Lincoln.

The Buntyn HOMESTEAD LANDS FOR SALE.

WE have the pleasure of placing on the market these very desirable and valuable lands, which are situated immediately at the Homestead Tract of the late Geraldus Buntyn, Esq., and adjoin the first station on the Memphis and Charleston railroad, five miles east of the city. The improvements, with about twenty acres of land, have recently been purchased by Dr. Jame F. Hill, Esq., who now resides upon the premises. The balance of the tract, consisting of about one hundred and fifty acres, is off to lots varying in size from five to ten acres, fronting upon good avenues, and laid off so as to secure to the purchaser the greatest amount of comfort. The trains of the Memphis and Charleston railroad afford the opportunity of going in and out of the city, from and to the country at pleasure, and thus to make a residence at this point almost as convenient as to live in the city itself.

The choice can now be had of lots wholly or part in original forest, or in field.

IN EXCHANGE FOR CITY PROPERTY.

The executors are directed by the will to sell this place and invest in city property, and we will receive proposals to exchange for either improved or vacant lots in the city.

To all parties looking for a suburban home, we do not think any property more desirable can be found, in regard to health, convenience or good neighborhood, within the same distance from the city.

The terms will be made very liberal and easy, and the price low in parties contemplating improvements.

Plans of the subdivision will be shown at our office.

LYNCHING NEAR RALEIGH.

Mass Meeting in the Night.

Terrible Warning to Horse Thieves.

We learn from a gentleman who resides a short distance from Raleigh, our county seat, that yesterday morning early the body of a man was found hung to a tree situated between the town and railroad. When discovered, life had apparently been extinct some hours. A pair of saddlebags belonging to the unfortunate being who had been so suddenly swung into eternity, lay across a fence near by, upon the outside of which a piece of paper had been fastened, bearing the written information that the dead had been committed in consequence of the horse thieving crimes which the deceased had been guilty of, and to protect that community in future from the heavy losses in stock they have suffered so frequently of late. The lynching was evidently done in the hours of night, and there is no clue as to who the actors in the tragedy are. It is supposed that the victim's name is Hale, though from what direct circumstance our informant did not know, other than such a man was known, or believed, to have been a sort of leader to a band in that locality which has been engaged in these nefarious practices for some months. We have given all the intelligence we can gather concerning this tragic occurrence. What provocation the people of that vicinity have had which impelled them to this deed, we know not, but we cannot but think that, under almost any circumstances, recourse to the law would have been much better. Summary executions by lynch law always shock those who are not participants, and in but few instances have we ever known them to be justices. This case, though, may be an exception.

Since writing the above we have learned by letter, from a very respectable citizen who resides near the scene of the lynching, some additional particulars. He says:

Your correspondent went with others to look at the sight, which I must say created considerable horror in my feelings, and found the individual hanging to the limbof a white oak tree, a few feet from the road, his feet about twenty inches from the ground, his hands tied behind with a handkerchief, and a slip of paper pinned to his coat, with the following written in pencil mark thereon: "Jeremiah Hale, hung by an outraged community for horse stealing." The act was no doubt done during the night as the corpse was cold when found. Hale came to this vicinity about eighteen months ago from Lafayette county, Mississippi, and as many of our citizens have lost mules and horses during the past winter and spring, suspicion had very naturally fixed upon Hale, as he was not accused of a very good character where he came from. It appears that he was implicated in stealing a horse and mule from Mr. W. H. Neal, a worthy citizen of this county, on Sunday night, May 5th, 1867, and put Mr. Neal to considerable trouble and expense searching the country for his stock—also depriving him of his means to cultivate his growing crop. Hale was traced to Holly Springs where he sold the mule, and from there Mr. Neal could not get on his track. Mr. Neal offered a reward of one hundred dollars for Hale through the AVALANCHE and as the deceased knew that the parties were in quest of him he did not show himself in the vicinity until yesterday morning, when two men cutting wood in Wolf River bottom, near the Macon road, came up with him, and as I learn, arrested him. Hale had no doubt been to see his wife, as he had in the saddlebags, found where he was hung, clothing just washed and fixed up ready for wearing. He leaves a wife and one or two children. Who the parties were that hung him is not now known and probably never will be. It will be a terror to others who have been engaged in the occupation of horse stealing in this section. Horse stealing has become of too frequent occurrence hereabouts, and although it is punishable by the statutes of the State, we never hear of a horse thief being hung, unless done privately without the sanction of law. L.

HIRING COLORED BOYS TO REGISTER.

More Radical Regard for Law and Order.

We have the names and residences of a number of colored boys, under or about sixteen years of age, who have procured certificates of registration from old Jim Davis, and will try to vote for Brownlow. These colored boys say that Barbour Lewis and other leading Radicals gave them a dollar a piece for getting registered, and promised them more if they would vote the Radical ticket at the ensuing election. They say that Davis didn't ask them how old they were, nor where they lived, but some men told them how they must vote. The colored boys say that they were minors, but Radicalism couldn't see that. The colored boys say that they were hired to register. Hired by the party professing extreme political virtue. Such outrages as this are calculated to beget extreme ill feeling. Why should colored boys, sixteen years of age, be allowed to register and vote while white boys are rigorously excluded? Why should Brownlowites plan and pay for corrupting the ballot box? Why should certificates of registration be given out to little black boys? Every sensible colored man should see that such things are most dangerous to the future well being of his race. He should despise and execrate such dishonest practice? He should know that the white men who use black boys thus for selfish purposes, will desert them when it is their interest to do so?

STATE VS. M. COMBS.—This case coming on to be heard was dismissed yesterday, the indictment being quashed. The court asked the Attorney General if he would refer the matter to the present grand jury for further action. He replied, "No." Therefore the prisoner was discharged. The motion pending against said M. Combs for to strike him from the rolls, was dismissed for want of prosecution. The defendant had been anxious and eager for a trial since the filing of the action, but no one appeared to prosecute. The general opinion is that the case would never have occupied the attention that it has, if Mr. Combs had not had personal enemies and rivals.

DIRECT TRADE.—Monsieur Christian Filbert, of Lyons, France, who has been on a visit to our city for some weeks, and Major Jos. Barbiere, our well known and popular fellow citizen, left Memphis on Monday, en route for Europe, to perfect the final arrangements for the consummation of Major Barbiere's grand scheme of direct trade between Memphis and Europe, which he has so long and faithfully labored at. He has succeeded in his disinterested efforts at last, and deserves—as he will doubtless receive—the congratulations of his friends upon the happy consummation. We will now have direct commercial communication with the great entrepots of the Old World. Messrs. Filbert, Miller & Walker will import all their goods in their own vessels, direct from the manufacturers, and will send vessels to us in exchange the products of our country. If this is not direct trade, what is? We wish them all success in their big undertaking, and trust they will realize a huge fortune.

CURIOUS SURGICAL CASE.—The wife of a professional gentleman was for a long time troubled with rheumatism in one of her legs, and finally there developed symptoms of the knee joint. There was very little circulation, but often extreme pain in the leg, and having tried many prescriptions in vain, the lady finally expressed a great desire to try chloroform manipulations. Her husband consented to the experiment. The operator gave to the patient chloroform, as he said, she could not otherwise undergo the pain of his operations. Whether he then made mesmeric passes or violently wrenched the limb to break up the anchylosis is unknown, but very shortly afterwards a blister came upon the foot of the affected limb, and then gangrene set in and the flesh mortified until the whole body had lost all her foot. Some of the ablest physicians of the city were called in, and their attention has checked the gangrene, but otherwise there is very little improvement in the lady's condition. The doctors now having the case in charge are not sure whether the blister was a symptom of constitutional disorganization or the result of the manipulation to which the patient was subjected. That within three days after the mesmerism the flesh should have sloughed off from the foot was singular.

HOW IT WOULD SOMETIMES.—"If that colored barber thinks I ain't as fit as he is to vote," said a white gentleman recently, "he must think it a degradation to shave me, and I guess I'll patronize a shop where I am not considered an inferior. There are just as good Conservative barbers as any others." This may have been a very wicked sentiment. Looking at it from a Radical stand point, it was perhaps atrocious, but it was natural. If by Radical decisions shaved better than others, or cheaper than others, the laws of trade should attract to them the business. If they don't, then a man cannot be expected to favor especially those who take up their noses at him and consider him unfit to vote that the most ignorant and drunken negro. The pertinence of the observation referred to will be seen when it is known that, influenced by Radical campaign cries, two-thirds of the colored barbers in Memphis advocate the party and measures that declare the great body of Southern white people too degraded to be fit to vote, while three-fourths of the German barbers of Memphis are Conservatives, who believe that a white man is just as good as a negro, and should have equal rights.

SCOTT'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—We have received the June number of this fine periodical, and take much pleasure in attesting its excellence and great worth. It presents the appearance of being in very competent editorial and typographical hands. Its selection of matter is of a most attractive character, and the editorial department exhibits marked talent, unusual excellence and mental vigor. The journal is full of vitality, and is amongst the most spirited and attractive of our Southern publications, and will well repay our people to subscribe for it and read it. The June number has an accurate copper plate engraving of the Rio Right Rev. Bishop Elliot, of Georgia, which will be a valuable souvenir of the great and good man. THE BAYONET AND TORCH VERSATILE.

Novel Modes of Collecting Taxes.

The well known prudence and good sense of County Clerk John Longue, and his singular course in pressing the collection of taxes even when the Courts held the assessments in litigation, and the Attorney General of the State declared the assessments illegal, satisfied most persons that he (Longue) had instructions from the State Government to go on; as money must be had; that no Court, no law, no legal opinion must be allowed to stand in the way. When questioned, Mr. Longue was profoundly reticent. He smiled, shook his head, and declared what he meant to do. He took unmoved the reflections cast upon him by the daily papers, and by those who appealed in vain to the Courts. The conviction became fixed that the instructions given Longue or other Brownlow officials here, by their superiors, were of such a character that they should be known to the public, but neither Longue, nor the County Commissioners, or any other Brownlow official, will show the letters and instructions that they have received. A few days since this point was made to a prominent Brownlowite. "Why," said he, "you know about that letter threatening arrests, and the torch to Memphis if the taxes should not be paid." "No," said his interlocutor, "what of it?" "Well, a letter was received in this city from Nashville, some days ago, which declared that the Courts should not interfere, and if they did the taxes should be collected in appealed cases, if it had to be done by bayonets and torches, and that the writer preferred that mode of collecting if a good excuse could be made."

The different Brownlow officials have been questioned about this infamous letter, but they won't tell what they know. They won't admit they have received such a letter; they equivocate about the words; they deny or dodge.

The person who admitted the receipt of the letter subsequently begged that his name should not be used in reference thereto. That he told the truth we don't entertain a doubt.

In this connection it is a curious fact that while the rabid State officials are wanting to collect illegal or at least doubtful taxes by the bayonet and torch, our Courts grant supersedeases, and Brownlow officials go on the bonds of citizens who appeal to the Courts for protection. No one has done more to resist the collection of taxes than Barbour Lewis, and Mr. Merriman kindly becomes bondsman for parties litigant.

MORE ABOUT LINCOLN COUNCIL.

Barbour Lewis Must be Expelled.

There was a meeting last night of the putrid carcass of Lincoln Council, but the movements of those who still cling to it have not yet transpired. We expect to publish them in a day or two.

At the previous meeting the Barbour Lewis and Eston faction had a majority of four votes to sustain Barbour. Then Hunter, Beecher, Waldron and a good many others resigned and left the council. They will draw most of the honest men along with them, they say. Judge Hunter was Vice President of the council, and had given Barbour Lewis such a scathing as few men have ever got. After Hunter, Beecher, Waldron and their friends retired it produced great excitement among those left behind. The Rev. Mr. Bliss, who has a good deal of influence in the dark lantern council, and Eston were willing Barbour Lewis should be saved, but the most of the Aldermen were determined that Lewis should be expelled, and for the seceders and clean them back. This curious proposition, after the previous acquittal of Barbour Lewis by four votes, was finally carried against the protest of Barbour Lewis—only three votes being cast against it. This was a damaging blow to some of the satellites of Barbour Lewis. Judge Leonard and Attorney of the Municipal Court objected almost in tears, and Eston and others laboriously at work to conciliate the Hunter men without expelling Barbour Lewis, but the seceders are inexorable, and will have no intercourse with Lincoln Council until Barbour Lewis is expelled. Under these circumstances we wait with interest a report of last night's proceedings. As we get our information from parties who hold positions in the Council, and proclaimed seceders, we are not a wits afraid of making conical blunders, as some sick Radicals affect to consider portions of our reports. When we are purposely misled in reference to the leading features in the proceedings in Lincoln Council, we will publish no less interesting matter in relation to the past lives of members of Lincoln Council and seceders.

THE MEMPHIS TURF.

A Meeting of the Club To-Morrow.

In accordance with a preliminary meeting of the incorporators of the "Memphis Mechanical and Agricultural Association," convened on the 23d instant, it is requested that all stockholders, and those interested in the furtherance of the improvement of the agile species, meet at the office of Harland L. Perkins, corner of Second and Monroe streets, to-morrow afternoon, (27th inst.) half o'clock. The decision of the "Turf Congress," as lately convened at Louisville, Kentucky, renders this call imperative, and demands immediate action.

INTERNAL.

It was Miss Mollie Price, who got the prize at Asbury Festival the other night.

Mary Hall is charged with stealing a watch from Mrs. Schultz.

Bill Cass is charged with stealing one hundred and fifteen dollars, and Pat Calhoun with stealing twenty-four dollars.

One of our contemporaries announces, a little inaccurately, "the local editors of the city will raffle three hundred and twenty acres" of land in western Arkansas, on the evening of July 4th—one hundred and fifty chances at two dollars each. The land is raffled by an old member of the press corps, and is that on which a silver mine was found last year. The chances are certainly good for those who are lucky in raffles.

There is a prevalent impression with some folks that Channing Richards, Esq., is likely to be the Register of Bankruptcies, and that to fix that was Tomeny's object in going to Washington recently. It seems that Mr. Perkins, Mr. Morrison and Mr. Richards are strongly backed for the place. Judge Swayne is now supposed to be a little behind; also, Latham. Feebles gave out in the first heat.

A letter vagabond mackarel boys went over the river yesterday in skiffs, and stole over one hundred dollars worth of fish from boxes in which they were kept. The young ruffians beat an old negro and two white boys severely and stole five skiffs, which they brought over to Memphis.

CHANGE IN THE MAIL ARRANGEMENTS.—The mail for the East via the Memphis and Charleston railroad, now leaves at half-past six in the morning instead of half-past six in the evening, as heretofore. This mail is in charge of the newly appointed postal clerks, and letters pass through to Washington, New York, Philadelphia and the East as rapidly as passengers.

SODA, CONGRESS, AND OTHER MINERAL WATERS AT CHANDLER'S.—There can be no question but that Chandler's magnificent soda and mineral waters are now at the best. He has in addition turned in the cool fountains from all the great springs of the world. Fresh Blue Lick just received from the springs. Chandler is courteous and affable as usual.

CRIMINAL COURT.—Yesterday the indictment in the case of M. Combs, jr., was quashed. The case of Wm. Sprouse was disposed of as a nol. pros. being entered by the Attorney General.

The cases for trial to-day are:

A. Williams and McCoy, larceny.
Wm. Clayton, malicious shooting.
R. H. Lynch, embezzlement.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

MEMPHIS, July 23, 1867.

A last adjourned meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen was held this evening at the Council Room. Present, Mayor; Chairman Hubert; Aldermen Powers, Glancy, Cochran, Allen, Bolling, Wickersham, Lynn, Hotel, O'Donnell, Townsend, Shaw, Lemon, Smith and Passmore.

A quorum being present, the Board of Aldermen was called to order. Chairman Hubert announced that the Council was in session for the purpose of hearing the report of the Aldermen of the 3d ward.

Alderman Mitchell, of Louisville, who is a wealthy and responsible man, agrees to furnish all the lumber, &c., and to expend the contract, and we have full and specific assurance that the money will be paid to us by the city, as soon as the money we may legally receive, above our own private means, is collected for the work.

Our reason for making arrangements complete before submitting the proposition to the Board of Aldermen was to avoid the delay of the bonds which may be required to be issued on the market for sale. We now ask that our profit in the matter be the work complete for the sum contracted for, and the seceders and clean them back. This curious proposition, after the previous acquittal of Barbour Lewis by four votes, was finally carried against the protest of Barbour Lewis—only three votes being cast against it. This was a damaging blow to some of the satellites of Barbour Lewis. Judge Leonard and Attorney of the Municipal Court objected almost in tears, and Eston and others laboriously at work to conciliate the Hunter men without expelling Barbour Lewis, but the seceders are inexorable, and will have no intercourse with Lincoln Council until Barbour Lewis is expelled. TABERNACLE TO-NIGHT.—We had the pleasure last night of viewing the rehearsal of the ballet dance, which are to be given in the New Memphis theater to-night, and can assure our readers that it will prove to be the richest and most elegant affair of the kind that has ever been placed before a Memphis audience. The most graceful, elegant and charming ladies in the city are engaged to appear in the beautiful pictures that Mrs. Thompson has selected for the entertainment. None of the voices that will interpret the very soul and life of music, are incomparably sweet and cannot fail to delight the crowd that will doubtless fill the theater from parquette to dome. There is one exception, and that is the voice that promises us "Il Bachio." Having heard her revel as luxuriously amid the trills and charming runs of that splendid musical composition, as a smacking of lips clears its throat for a long move and revels in the wine of song, we do not anticipate too much in promising her hearers the rich treat that is in her sweet voice. To-night will be a gala fete of pleasure in the New Memphis theater, and all music loving people who can possibly go will regret the delights that are promised. The box office will be open to-day. Go and secure seats.

POLICE MEASURES.—Several respectable colored men who see that the true interests of their race lie in cultivating the mutual interests of all Southern people, white and black, and maintaining good will between the races, complain that when some dirty, sneaking policeman who wants to gratify the political prejudices of Beaumont, find, out that a colored man is a Conservative, they seek to annoy him in many ways. They prowl about his house, make frivolous charges, annoy his family with complaint and threats, and do all the dirt they can. So much do such brutal violations of police duty, and of the rules and regulations of the police force against meddling in politics among colored Conservatives, that some of them have desired us to make no specific reference to them as the police would persecute them much worse. This illustrates the Brownlow idea of free speech.

WHAT IS TO BE THE END OF IT.—Several colored men were a day or two since in earnest discussion on the corner of DeSoto and Union streets. It began in reference to several colored boys in that vicinity who have got registration papers, and in the course of the talk the bringing colored men here from Arkansas and from Mississippi to vote was referred to. One colored man observed that he was afraid such "tricks as dem." "Dat," said he, "makes bad feelins between us and white folks. How dat gwine to help us. Bad feelins gets worse and worse. Dat's what I'm afeard of." The fear of a favorite of the white folks. We aint guine to live on de yotis, and when we mind de foolin of dem white fellows dat want us to keep on hatin de white folks born in de South, and doin taken tricks agin dem I specs we sirs makin trouble for ourselves by'een-by."

CHANCERY COURT.—The following orders and decrees were entered yesterday:

Frances Mailes, administratrix, vs Final decree.
Reed et al vs Ander-on et al. Final decree.
McKinney et al vs Winters et al. Injunction reinstated.
Jones et al vs Hocking. Decree for sale.
Gerard vs Hocking. Decree for sale.

Brown vs Brown. Decree quieting title.
Burch vs Van Hoosier. Final decree.
Bell vs Bell et al vs Riddle. Final decree.
Ed. Rice & Co vs Hicks. Order—case pro tano.
Riddick vs Riddick. Decree quieting title.

The hearing docket will be taken up to-day at No. 514.

DEAD BODY NEGLECTED.—A gentleman reports that there is a dead negro lying on the right side of the Mississippi and Tennessee railroad, on the first skirt of woods about two miles from the city. He is supposed to have killed himself by sun stroke, as he has the appearance of sudden death, while clenching a cracker in the right hand, and a paper of sugar lying near the body. The deceased was first discovered Saturday morning last, and up to noon yesterday, nothing had been done with it. The stench from it is now an intolerable nuisance.

ASBURY FESTIVAL.—This pleasant festival still keeps on, and new features are daily added. A splendid wine set is up for the most popular lawyer; a set of bone ball implements for the most popular base ball club; a silver cup for the finest baby, a valuable opal and diamond pin for the most popular book-keeper. The ladies named for the China set are Mrs. Turley, Mrs. Capers, Mrs. Page, and Mrs. M. C. Galloway.

TABERNACLE ENTERTAINMENT.—The performances for the benefit of the Fanny Thurston Fund at the Tabernacle last night, were very interesting. Mr. Thornton, by Miss Stella Evelyn, received great applause. All the declamations were highly creditable. The audience was highly intelligent and respectable, but not as large as the programme merited.

A Home for Mr. Davis.

To the People of the South: The Ladies' Davis Association of Mississippi was organized at the capital September 29th, 1866, for the purpose of receiving means for the family of ex-President Davis. A sufficient sum has been realized to meet present necessities. The work of love and duty which this Association proposes is raising funds for the purpose of purchasing a home for Mr. Davis in Mississippi. To effect this purpose it is necessary to appeal to the people of the Southern States for pecuniary assistance to organize associations in each of the States for the furtherance of the noble cause. The Association pledges its honor to the people of the South to apply faithfully the funds which may be contributed.

Contributions from all the States urgently solicited. They may be remitted to J. & T. Green, First National Bank, Jackson, Miss. All donations will be acknowledged by the Secretary.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Business on the wharf yesterday was exceedingly dull. The local packets went out with light trips.

The departures are the Commercial, for White river; City of Alton, for St. Louis; Sam. J. Hale, for Cincinnati; Lady and Mollie Hambleton, for St. Francis river, and Norman, for Louisville.

The M. S. Mepham, from New Orleans for Louisville, passed up Monday night at eleven p.m.

The St. Charles, from New Orleans for Louisville, passed up last night at nine o'clock p.m.

The Emerald, from Cincinnati for New Orleans, passed down yesterday morning.

The magnificent and superb passenger steamer General Quitman, in command of Captain White, will be found at the wharf this morning, ready to receive for New Orleans and all intermediate landings, and leave to-day at five p.m. Messrs. Howard and Jussop, two suitable and clever gentlemen, have charge of the office. She will make all way landings and attend to all way business.

The Darling, a splendid Cincinnati packet.

The Mary Swan, Cora S. will be in to-day from Louisville, and return to Louisville on Friday at four p.m.

The Mary Swan will be in to-day from Evansville, and return to Evansville to-morrow at five p.m.

The regular Hale's Point packet Victor No. 2, Captain Mounce, is receiving at the wharf for Hale's Point and the Bends, and leaves to-day at five p.m. Mr. John Grebert, a polite and clever gentleman, is her purser.

On the last trip up of the Amazon from New Orleans, a passenger of the yard, registered J. A. Bright, jumped overboard and was drowned, the first night out from New Orleans. His true name was N. J. Stoke, of Mobile. He was supposed to be insane.

The Darling, bound from Cincinnati to this port, was reported aground on Sunday morning at Rising Sun, Indiana.

The Celeste is receiving for the Arkansas river and way points, and is announced to leave to-day at five p.m.

The splendid passenger packet Rubicon, Capt. Blake, will be ready to leave for Cairo and St. Louis at five p.m. for Cairo and St. Louis. Wm. Grissome is her accommodating clerk.

The Belle St. Louis is the regular Thursday St. Louis packet.

The sternwheel steamer J. G. Blackford, was sold at St. Louis on Monday by the United States Marshal to Capt. H. L. Lee for the sum of $5,500. Captain Lee will fit the Blackford up for the Red river trade, and run her in connection with the Lizzie Tate.

The St. Louis Democrat, of Monday, has the following:

Robbery and Incendiarism.—The Steamer S. W. Brooks Robbed and Set on Fire.—One of the boldest robberies of the day was committed yesterday morning on the steamer S. W. Brooks, lying at the foot of Elm street. The boat reached the landing at half-past two o'clock in the morning, from Fort Smith, on the Arkansas river, and was moored at the foot of Elm street. Captain J. S. Johnson, her commander, paid a social call on some other vessels. There are two berths with mattresses in the office. After committing the robbery, the thief set fire to one of the beds and made his escape unobserved. Smoke was discovered by some of the employes of the boat, and was extinguished before any serious damage was done. The boat is owned by H. A. Huffner and William Ritter. It is not known who was the perpetrator of the crime, but suspicion falls upon a certain individual who was a passenger. The matter will no doubt be investigated, and it is hoped that the guilty party will be brought to justice. The river is rising slowly all the way from Winona. The Illinois is falling. The Missouri is swelling from the headwaters. The weather is so hot as it is generally found to be in this latitude. Arrivals are numerous, and receipts consequently heavy. A fair amount of business is expected to be done this week. Rates to New Orleans will be established this morning, which will probably last this week. Heavy rains are reported on the upper Mississippi.

The Waverly has gone to the docks for repairs. The attempt to wreck the White Cloud and Belle Memphis by means of gunpowder and galvanic battery is reported successful. The first trial was made on Thursday, by the managers of the steamer J. G. Totten. This will render our harbor safer.

TUESDAY'S NOON DISPATCHES.

The President's Reception at Boston.

Gala Day in the City of Motions.

Ten Thousand Masons at the Reception.

Late Foreign News per Atlantic Cable.

BOSTON, June 24.—Secretary Seward and General Rousseau spent Sunday at Quincy, attending church in the morning and visiting Adams' mansion in the afternoon. Mr. Seward dined with Hon Sam. Hooper, in company with Senator and Mrs. Sumner, Prof. Agassiz, Mr. Longfellow and others. Early this morning the streets were crowded by citizens and strangers from the surrounding country. It was with the greatest difficulty that many trains could afford sufficient accommodations. Houses were decorated with flags along the route. Every window, doorway, balcony and housetop from which a display could be seen, were occupied at an early hour. Schools, State and municipal offices, and nearly all the places of trade and labor, were closed, the people being engaged in the general holiday. The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts assembled at the President's apartments on Sumner street, where the procession formed, and under the escort of the Boston Encampment Knights Templars, proceeded to the new temple, a beautiful and imposing edifice seven stories high, with an octagon tower in the south corner rising twelve feet, and a smaller and less lofty tower at the north corner. The dedication ceremonies commenced at nine o'clock, and none except Masons participated. The President, Postmaster General, Major General Rousseau and Surgeon Basil Norris were present, being members of the fraternity. After the ceremonies had closed, the President expressed the most sincere and profound gratitude experienced at being present with the Grand Lodge on this interesting occasion. At the conclusion of the President's remarks the Session of the Grand Lodge was terminated. By the time the private ceremonies in the hall were concluded, the Masons who had been forming on the common were ready to form in procession, and they joined those who had been engaged in the temple exercises, and in an unbroken line they proceeded through the principal streets. The procession consisted of eighteen divisions, and was commanded by Wm. D. Scratton, Grand Marshal. In addition to the encampments of this State, there were encampments from Rhode Island New York, New Hampshire, Maine, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and the District of Columbia, with knights from other States. The St. James Lodge, of New York, instituted in 1751, carried its old Washington Bible, upon which Washington took the first oath of office for President of the United States. Lodges from Maine, Illinois, New York, Washington, and other cities and States, were in line, with strong representations of various organizations in England and the British Provinces. It is thought there were upwards of 10,000 Masons in the procession. Many decorations along the route were of a brilliant character. The President stood much of the time, hat in hand, in acknowledgment of complimentary cheers, and bouquets were occasionally thrown into the carriage. Much enthusiasm was manifested everywhere, and the only allusion made to politics heard was a cry of "No impeachment!" A large number of mothers presented their children to the notice of the President, who gave a kind word and more than one kiss to the little ones. Bostonians say never before this time was politics so successfully excluded from a public demonstration in honor of a public man. Many were glad to have the President among them in order that they might express respect for him as Chief Magistrate, irrespective of party issues which disturb the country. The Masons commenced assembling at eight o'clock a.m., and it was five o'clock p.m. when they reached the Boston Theatre, where, after the usual preliminaries, before a dense audience, an oration was delivered by Rev. W. J. Stanley, President and Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. An original ode was sung, and the ceremonies concluded with prayer, doxology and benediction.

The President, with the Mayor and General Rousseau, was then escorted to the Egyptian Saloon, in the new Masonic Temple, and partook of a banquet. Before the close of the ceremonies, Grand Master Dowe said: "Owing to the fatigues of the day, and in order that the President may withdraw now, if he desires, I would now propose the sentiment—The President of the United States," which was received with a general clapping of hands, and was succeeded by three cheers. The President, in reply to the compliment, made a few remarks, which were greeted with three cheers at the close.

General Rousseau presented a letter from Secretary Seward, regretting he could not be present; a family affliction had for some months prevented him from attending public dinners and such occasions.

The President was warmly shaken by the hand by brother Masons, and subsequently escorted to the hotel, where ex-President Pierce paid his respects.

BERLIN, June 24.—Baron Von Herverdit, Minister of Finance, and acting Prime Minister in the absence of Count Bismarck, closed the session of the Prussian Diet to-day. In a speech to the members of Upper and Lower Houses, on this occasion, he said that the cordial and intimate relations now existing between the King of Prussia and his powerful neighbors were assurances of a lasting peace.

VIENNA, June 24.—The Austrian Government has joined the Governments of France, Prussia, Italy and Russia, in a recent note to the Porte, urging him to investigate the difficulties in Candia.

IMPORTANT DECISION BY CHIEF JUSTICE CHASE.

Debts Due the Citizens of Loyal States not Discharged by Payment to Confederate Receivers.

Special Dispatch to the Chicago Times.]

WASHINGTON, June 21.

Chief Justice Chase returned here last night, and has supplied a copy of an important opinion which he has just delivered in the United States Circuit Court in North Carolina, wherein he decided that debts due to citizens of loyal States are not discharged by payment to rebel receivers. The Chief Justice elaborates in this opinion his legal views on the relations of the States lately in rebellion to the United States Government. He says that there is no doubt that the State of North Carolina, by the acts of the Convention of May, 1861, by the previous acts of the Government of the State, by subsequent acts of the State Government, and of the people at the election held after May, 1861, set aside her State Government and Constitution connected, under the National Constitution, with the Government of the United States, and established a new constitution and government set up in hostility to the United States, and entered upon a course of active warfare against the National Government. Nor is there any doubt that by these acts the practical relations of North Carolina to the Union were suspended, and very serious liabilities incurred by those who were engaged in them. But these acts did not effect, even for a moment, the separation of North Carolina from the Union, any more than the acts of an individual who commits grave offences against the State, by resisting its officers and defying its authority, can separate himself from the State. Such acts may subject the offender even to outlawry, but cannot discharge him from duty nor relieve him from responsibility.

With regard to the repeal of the North Carolina Ordinance of 1789, by which ordinance she joined the Union, the Chief Justice says that no elaborate discussion of the theoretical question thus presented seems now to be necessary; that the question, as a practical one, is at rest, and is not likely to be renewed. It is enough to say here, that, in the opinion of the court, the answer which it has received from events is that which the soundest construction of the Constitution warrants and requires. Nor can we agree, he says, with some persons distinguished by abilities and virtues, who insist that when rebellion attains the proportions and assumes the character of civil war, it is purged of its treasonable character, and can only be punished by the defeat of its armies, the disappointment of its hopes, and the calamities incident to unsuccessful war. Courts have no policy; they can only declare the law. On what sound principles, then, can we say, judicially, that the levying of war ceases to be treason when the war becomes formidable?—that, though war levied by ten men or one hundred is certainly treason, it is no longer such when levied by ten thousand or one hundred thousand?—that the armed attempt of a few, attended by no serious danger to the Union, and suppressed by slight exertions of the public forces, come unquestionably within the constitutional definition; but that attempts by a vast combination, controlling several States, putting great armies in the field, menacing with imminent peril the very life of the republic, and demanding immense efforts and immense expenditures of treasure and blood for their defeat and suppression, swell beyond the bounds of the definition and become innocent in the proportion of their enormity? But it is said that this is the doctrine of the Supreme Court. We think otherwise. The fact that citizens are made and prisoners of war exempts them from the military chiefs are authorized to receive surrender of essential privileges forfeited by treason, as regarded by the political authorities, as commissions made by the President and Executive departments of the Government in the exercise of political discretion, in the interest of humanity, to mitigate pestions inflamed by civil conflicts, and to prevent the frightful evils of mutual reprisals and relations. They establish no rights, except during the war.

The Chief Justice then says: When the strife of arms is over, wise governments, therefore, exercising still their political discretion, address themselves mainly to the work of conciliation and restoration, and exert the prerogative of mercy rather than that of justice. Complete remission is usually extended to large classes by amnesty or other exercise of Legislative or Executive authority, and individuals not included in these classes, with some exceptions of the greatest offenders, are absolved by pardon—either absolutely or upon condition prescribed by the Government. These principles common to all civilized nations, are they which regulated the action of the Government of the United States during the war of the rebellion, and have regulated its action since the rebellion laid down its arms, and while hostilities were yet flagrant on account of it. Congress practically abolished the death penalty for treason, and subsequently provided a mode in which citizens of rebel States, maintaining a loyal adhesion to the Union, could recover, after the war, the value of their capture of abandoned property. The National Government has steadily sought to facilitate restoration, with adequate guarantees of union, order and civil rights. On no occasion, however, and by no act, have the United States ever renounced their constitutional jurisdiction over the whole territory or over all the citizens of the republic, or conceded to citizens in arms against their country the character of alien enemies, or to their pretended government the character of a de facto government. Those who engage in rebellion must expect the consequences. If they succeed, rebellion becomes revolution, and the new government will justify its founders; if they fail, all their acts hostile to the rightful government are violations of law, and originate no rights which can be recognized by the courts of the nation, whose authority and existence have been alike assailed.

The New York Shipping List observes:

The general markets have settled down upon a basis of the usual light summer trade, and, taking things in the usual course, we can hardly look for much activity before the opening of the fall season, which, from present appearances, will be altogether more satisfactory than the spring. In fact, business men, with scarcely an exception, predicate an active revival of trade and industry upon a large yield of agricultural staples, and very naturally, since the depression in commercial circles for year past has been largely due to a deficiency of the leading staples of the country. In the face of the cheering accounts that continue to reach us from the agricultural districts, the breadstuffs market continues to weaken, and prices have now been to a reasonable scale, to the manifest satisfaction of all, save, perhaps, a few speculators, who, not fully comprehending the situation, have held on with too much tenacity. As to the general line of commercial values, there is little change. There is not much inclination to increase stocks at this stage of the season, and there is very little disposition to force goods upon an unwilling market, as it is pretty well understood that such a movement would hardly fail to result disastrously to those making the attempt.
